

Wildflower Health

Wildflower is a women's health solutions company, specializing in digital and value-based care. We are the architect of the industry's first, and only, comprehensive bundle for value-based maternity care, with pre-built functionality for all actuarial, clinical and operational needs. Wildflower is facilitating the transition to value, starting with the OB episode. Our mission is to enable the best care, for all women, every time.

Our capabilities include a combination of technology, health advocacy and value enablement services, all designed to simplify the journey to value-based care for providers, payers, and purchasers by collapsing silos and aligning rewards around the delivery of healthy outcomes for women and their families.

Wildflower is ushering in a new era for women's health. This is a smarter way to care. www.wildflowerhealth.com

About the Role

As an Editor with Wildflower Health, you'll work with the Editorial Manager and Patient Journey/Editorial team to research, write, edit, and support the management of health content for our digital app users. This will include learning and distilling clinical content from top-tier evidence-based sources, primarily but not exclusively for pregnant, postpartum, and new parent users.

As a member of the Patient Journey's team, you will work with the other Editors and Journey Designers to develop and support the management of health content. You'll craft patient-friendly content in the form of articles, tasks, and other content types, as well as support all stages of the editorial process. Proofreading, grade level work, and image selection will all be part of the regular tasks for this position, as will team problem-solving and brainstorming.

Key Responsibilities

- Research content and information from leading health organizations and clinical associations to understand and distill guidelines for patient care.

- Write articles and other content types to engage and educate users, practicing diligence in the supporting of clinical statements and recommendations with references.
- Stay up-to-date and aware of clinical and wellness topics related to pregnancy, postpartum, women's health, parenting, health equity, and other topics as our roadmap continues to develop.
- Copyedit and proofread articles and other content types.
- Edit content for specific reading levels.
- Work closely with Editorial Team on content development projects, both clinical and non-clinical.
- Communicate and collaborate with consulting clinicians on clinical reviews and special projects.
- Research, learn, document, and practice inclusive style guidelines.
- Work with the Editorial Team to create timely, engaging clinical content for all users, mindful of using inclusive language, following best practices of health literacy, and carefully following clinical guidelines.

Ideal Candidate

- BA or BS
- At least 2-3 years of experience writing content related to health and wellness.
- Experience interpreting health research and editing content for medical accuracy.
- Ability to read and research medical information and clinical guidelines; maintain adherence to pre-approved top-tier organizations (ACOG, CDC, AAP).
- Proofreading experience and ability to pass a proofreading test.
- Knowledge of and ability to follow best practices for health literacy and accessibility of information.
- Self-motivated to write and edit to convey empathy and inclusiveness across all content. This includes aligning with Wildflower Health's DEI statement in both working environment and work product.
- Approaches work and writing with compassion, especially as it applies to helping patients navigate healthcare and health information.
- Willingness to manage multiple projects, as well as flexibility to shift priorities as needed.
- Communicates well with co-workers and managers and is willing to ask for help when needed.
